National Cultural Center TV Benefit at Lisner

The University is joining with many other organizations throughout the country in sponsoring the closed-circuit telecast benefit for the National Cultural Center, An American Pageant of the Arts, at Lisner Auditorium, Thursday evening, November 29.

President John F. Kennedy and a host of the most famous performing artists in the United States, including Leonard Bernstein, Hal Holbrook, Jason Robards, Jr., Frederick March, Florence Eldridge, Danny Kaye, Gene Kelly, Tammy Grimes, Jerome Robbins, Harry Belafonte, Benny Goodman, Abe Burrows, Pablo Casals, Mike Nichols and Elaine May, Dorothy Kirsten, Richard Tucker, and Alexander Schneider, will participate in the telecast.

There are dozens of ways in which to make a gift to The George Washington University. Are you interested in a special educational program? Write to the Wills, Bequests, and Gifts Program, Development Division, The George Washington University, 2000 H Street, N. W., Washington 6, D. C., for more information relating to how you can perpetuate your special field of interest.

A gigantic television screen is being installed on Lisner stage especially for the telecast. A concert by the George Washington University Orchestra, directed by George Steiner, will precede the telecast at 8:30 p.m.

University alumni may obtain tickets at $5.00 each by mailing a check with the special blank provided on page 7 of this Newsletter.

President Carroll States Need for Specific Goals

University President Thomas H. Carroll called on the faculty to chart specific goals for the future during a candid report on University affairs made at the first Fall Faculty Assembly.

"We must aspire to the support we want," he said. "Our concern must be for today and tomorrow, for the present and the future. In studies during the past year we have expressed ourselves in broadly stated goals, but these studies have not produced specific, factual projections of the kind we must have for the proper development of this University. In medicine, engineering, and law, we have provided the specific goals for the future, the projections that are so necessary."

He noted that the decade ahead will be characterized by change, at an accelerating pace, which will have great impact upon higher education. "I maintain that change and progress are not synonymous, but it is impossible to have progress without some change," he said. "The very process of growth involves change."

Dr. Carroll then called attention to the spirited movement among the Medical staff and Faculty on behalf of the campaign to raise $5.8 million for the addition to and modernization of the University Hospital. "Matching funds from Congress and the generous support of many individuals and foundations have been forthcoming in this project because the School of Medicine accurately charted specific goals for the future," he emphasized.

"Beginning this year, carefully designed studies will be undertaken on a University-wide basis, and other studies will be asked of the Schools, in order that we may illuminate our educational philosophy in very specific terms. Our studies will be designed to project clearer directions, needs, and priorities for the future. This will be done in terms of program plans, faculty and staff requirements, and needed facilities of instruction and research. This

What's New in Your University . . .

"Lectures in Miniature," presented for the past three months by WMAL Radio in Washington Monday through Friday at 12:35 p.m., in cooperation with the University, will continue on a permanent basis. This five-minute program presents one member of the University Faculty each week in a brief lecture each day on his special field. Subject matter has included widely varied topics, including Speech, Psychology, Engineering, Music, The Classics, Patents, Law, Economics, Russian Literature, Anthropology, Guerilla Warfare, and Hospital Service.

A study of projected needs for scientific equipment and facilities at the University for the next decade is being prepared by Professors Herbert E. Smith and Ben A. Lindberg of the School of Engineering and Applied Science. The study is being made in response to a request made to universities throughout the nation by the National Science Foundation.

Professor Paul Halmos of the University of Michigan delivered on October 11 in the University's Lisner Auditorium the first two of a series of thirty lectures to be presented at the University this year and next under the joint sponsorship of the University's Department of Mathematics and the Office of Naval Research. Professor Halmos' subject was A Glimpse into Hilbert Space.

Applied Music is being offered at the University for the first time this fall. Individual lessons in voice, piano, and other instruments are available for university credit.

Courses leading to a liberal arts major in ceramics are being offered by the University for the first time this fall in cooperation with the Corcoran School of Art.

New courses in the history of science and the history of the Civil War are being offered for the first time at the University this fall. The history of science course is being taught by Dr. Robert P. Multhauf, Head Curator for the Department of Science and Technology at the Smithsonian Institution. Dr. James I. Robertson, Executive Director of the United States Civil War Centennial Commission, is teaching the course on the history of the Civil War.

Three Named Assistant Deans

Dr. Grisamore

Dr. Smith

Three members of the University Faculty were named Assistant Deans as the Fall Semester opened.

Dr. Nelson T. Grisamore, Professor of Electrical Engineering, and Dr. Herbert E. Smith, Professor of Engineering Administration, were appointed Assistant Deans in the University's recently reorganized and renamed School of Engineering and Applied Science. Dr. Grisamore is Assistant Dean (Research), and Dr. Smith is Assistant Dean (Academic). Both positions are newly created in the School.

Mrs. Elizabeth Truman Wright, Assistant Professor of English Composition, was appointed Assistant Dean of the Division of University Students.

Mrs. Wright

Dr. Grisamore has been associated with the University since 1942 in various academic and research positions, including Chairman of the Department of Electrical Engineering. He holds two degrees from the University of Illinois, and received his Doctorate at George Washington.

Dr. Smith has been at the University since 1958. He received his Bachelor's degree from City College of New York, and his Master's and Doctor's degrees from New York University. He has taught at City College of New York, Rennslear Polytechnic Institute, and the University of Maryland.

Mrs. Wright has been a member of the University Faculty since 1956. She is a graduate of Allegheny College, and received a Master's degree in foreign affairs from George Washington, and a Master's degree in linguistics from the University of Michigan. Mrs. Wright has also taught at Mount Vernon Seminary. At the University, she has specialized in English for foreign students.

Mrs. Carroll Receives Columbian Women

Members of Columbian Women were received by Mrs. Thomas H. Carroll at the President's House at a festive tea opening their club year and spearheading their scholarship benefit program.

Mrs. Carroll, wife of the University President, graciously received guests and invited Mrs. Daniel Andersen, Columbian Women Program and Benefit Chairman, to display and tell about exhibits of items which members of Columbian Women are selling during their unique "Do-It-Yourself Benefit for One Semester Hour of Tuition ($33.00)." Mrs. Andersen announced that more than $1,000 had been pledged.

Columbian Women are implementing Chairman Andersen's benefit program by raising money on an individual basis, or by joining with one or more other members of Columbian Women, to meet pledges of $33 by December 1. Some are holding parties, lectures, or musicales and inviting guests to come and donate to the scholarship fund. Others are selling candies and other edibles—some of their own making—cards, ceramics, knitted items. One member has already sent a check representing "the movies I did not attend this summer." Another hopes to market several poems before the December 1 deadline.

Stanley Tracy, Director of Alumni Relations, has announced that Columbian Women living out of Washington who may wish to know the names of other University alumni in the area—to invite to a Do-It-Yourself-Benefit—may write for a list to Alumni Center at the University.

Members of Columbian Women who assisted at Mrs. Carroll's tea were Dean Elizabeth Benson, Miss Elizabeth Earle, Mrs. Watson W. Eldridge, Mrs. Joshua Evans Jr., Mrs. Charles W. Ihle, Dr. Dorothy Johnson, Dr. Virginia Kirkbride, Mrs. Cloyd H. Marvin, Mrs. E. K. Morris, and Dr. Helen Stone.

Other Columbian Women events scheduled this year include a morning coffee featuring Senator Margaret Chase Smith as speaker on January 19 and a luncheon featuring Mrs. Arthur J. Goldberg as speaker on March 16. The annual meeting will be held following a brunch in Alumni Lounge May 4.

Giving to the Alumni Fund is giving help to support a greater George Washington University.

Hospital Fund Under Way

Volunteers are now raising $2 million toward expansion and modernization of the University Hospital.

Cost of projected construction will total $5.8 million. Congress has authorized $2.5 million in matching funds; and friends and associates of the University have already donated $1.3 million.

Trustee Carleton D. Smith is serving as General Chairman of the Fund. Other Fund officials include the Hon. Burks Summers, Chairman, Committee for Special Gifts; John C. Pyles, Jr., Chairman, Committee for Business and Industry; Dr. Seymour Alpert, Chairman, Medical Committee; Trustee Benjamin McKelway, Chairman, Committee on Foundations; and Mrs. Barton W. Richwine, President of the Women's Board of the Hospital.

An Advisory Committee for the Fund includes Chairman of the Board of Trustees Newell W. Ellison; University President Thomas H. Carroll; Trustee E. K. Morris; Provost O. S. Colclough; and Dean John Parks of the School of Medicine.

C. Max Farrington, Assistant to the President for Special Projects, is administrative officer in charge of the campaign. Also serving as staff officers are Victor F. Ludwig, Hospital Administrator; and Merle Dowd, Director of Public Relations.

CONFERENCE

U. S. Government Research and Development Contracts, Lisner Auditorium, November 1 and 2.

The Conference is sponsored by the National Law Center of The George Washington University in cooperation with Federal Publications, Inc. Registration fee is $60 per person; $30 for Government employees. Checks should be made payable to R & D Conference and mailed to R & D Conference, 501 RCA Building, Washington 6, D. C.

The General Alumni Association cordially invites all in attendance at this Conference to attend (1) the Homecoming football game with Richmond University at 8 p.m., Friday, November 2, and (2) the GWU Homecoming Dance in the National Guard Armory, Saturday, November 3, at 10:00 p.m.

Football tickets may be secured at Lisner Auditorium. Dance tickets are available at the Alumni Office, 2000 H Street, N. W.

University Provides Alumni Placement Service

Alumni are reminded that the University offers a free placement service to graduates of George Washington interested in relocating.

The office now maintains a file of positions available in many diversified areas—engineering, business (including marketing research, management, administration, and accounting), law, economics, teaching, and other fields.

The response from many alumni has been good, both from those seeking a change of position and those seeking qualified applicants to fill positions.

will be done with boldness and assurance of purpose," he declared.

"We shall build a new image of the University in the years ahead. This image cannot be created artificially. Statements from the President or the Board of Trustees or Deans will not do it. It will be done through careful study, thoughtful action, and the dedication of all members of this educational community to scholarly attainments."

Research

Following are some of the research projects undertaken recently by University scholars:

"Evaluation of Area Development Administration," under a grant from the Ford Foundation of $57,000 for two years. Principal Investigator, Sar G. Levitan, Research Professor of Labor Economics.

Four University alumni were prominently featured in Life magazine's September 14 special issue devoted to "The Take-over Generation," featuring 100 of "the most important young men and women in the United States."

Chosen among the 100 represented by full-length photos and short tributes were IRVING S. COOPER, AB 43, MD 45, who "pioneered in the treatment of Parkinson's disease, developed the promising new cryogenic operation, a major breakthrough"; DANIEL K. INOUE, JD 52, a war hero who "worked up through Democratic party ranks in Hawaii and became the first Oriental to serve in the House of Representatives"; and EDWARD LeBARON, JR., LLB 59, "one of pro football's greatest players" who "picked up a law degree, now pursues both careers."

Life notes that "there are many others qualified to be in this roster—and some of them show up later in this issue." One of these is MURDOCK HEAD, LLB 58, Assistant Clinical Professor of Surgery and Professorial Lecturer in Forensic Medicine at the University, who is the subject of a picture feature, "Doctor, Lawyer, Welder of Ideas." Dr. Head, who holds degrees in medicine and dentistry as well as law, also directs Airline Conference Center, "where leaders of thought and opinion from many fields and many nations meet to trade ideas on solving man's problems."

HELEN M. DYER, MS 29, PHD 35, a member of the General Alumni Association's Governing Board, attended the Eighth International Cancer Congress in Moscow this summer, where she delivered a paper, "The Metabolism of Fluorenylacetylamide in the Rhesus Monkey."

Colonial Sports

A double-barrelled attraction—the first appearance of an Army football team in the Nation's Capital together with all the pomp and ceremony surrounding a parade of the Military Academy's cadet corps—is the choice fare to be served area sports fans by the University on October 27 at D. C. Stadium.

As if the Army team in itself wasn't enough incentive for local fans to trek to 23rd & East Capitol Streets on the 27th, the name of Paul Dietzel as it's head coach should be. After seven sensationally successful years at Louisiana State University, Dietzel accepted Army's call to the post last spring to become the first civilian, non-graduate coach in West Point's 73-year history. His seven-year record at LSU speaks for itself: 45 victories, 24 defeats, and 3 ties; three Bowl teams, two of them victorious; an outright Southeastern Conference champion in 1958 and a co-champion last year.

Jim Camp and his George Washington Colonials naturally will have their hands full with Army, especially in view of their near paper-thin squad of 35. But all of Camp's elevens are scrappy ones and you can be sure they'll be giving their all in this one.

George Washington naturally expects its largest home crowd of the season for Army, and tickets have been going fast since August 1. Ticket Manager Billy DeRosa will be selling seats at Lisner Auditorium up until the day of the game, reserved sideline seats selling for $4 and end-zone seats for $2.50.

Your belief in the University and in the quest for academic excellence can be expressed by participation in the 1962 Annual Alumni Fund.

Scholarship Holders Honored

A luncheon honoring the 18 students who received Alumni and Columbian Women Scholarships this year was given by the General Alumni Association on October 2 at the Alumni Center. Miss Elsie Green, Chairman of the GAA's Scholarship Committee, served as hostess.

President Carroll Attends BYU Game

University President Thomas H. Carroll, accompanied by Assistant to the President Robert S. Jordan and Dean of the Graduate School of Public Law Louis H. Mayo, flew with the University football team on September 28 to Provo, Utah, where they witnessed the George Washington-Brigham Young football game of Saturday evening, September 29. The Colonials came through with their first win of the season, 13-12.

The President and his party were entertained during their stay by Vernon Romney, President of George Washington's Alumni Club in Utah, and Brigham Young President Ernest L. Wilkinson. President Wilkinson entertained President Carroll and his party at a dinner at his home Friday evening.

President Wilkinson and Mr. Romney, who are both graduates of the George Washington Law School, invited all University alumni in Utah to Provo on Saturday for a tour of the Brigham Young campus and dinner at a University dining hall prior to the game.
